'Minor Changes' Turn Trick; Rookies Star

GAME RECAP (GREEN BAY PRESS-GAZETTE)

(BOSTON) - Just a few "minor" changes by first year Coach Ray McLean turned a tight game into a rout as the Packers walloped the New York Giants 41-20 here Saturday night. Green Bay trailed at the half 20-13, but intercepted three aerials by New York's Don Heinrich in the third period led to as many touchdowns. Heinrich and Chuck Conerly experienced no difficulty penetrating the Packers' pass defense over the first two periods as they clicked on 8 of 12 attempts good for 119 yards. McLean declined to explain the shift in strategy which brought about such a radical turn in fortunes. Whatever it was, he only hopes it will work all year. The Johnnys-on-the-spot, in order of appearance, were Al Romine, reliable Bobby Dillon and Billy Kinard, who had been the goat earlier when he let the Giants' Frank Gifford get behind him for a 50-yard scoring completion. Bart Starr directed the assaults that followed the third period interceptions. Romine's bit of larceny gave Green Bay the ball on New York's 38 and the Packers barely made the 10 yards needed for a first down in four ground plays. Starr evidently decided this route was too difficult so he took to the air. Two tosses fell incomplete, but Max McGee picked off the third for 23 yards and a first down on the Giants' 5. On the second play, Starr sent Howie Ferguson through a huge hole on the left side for the tally that tied the score at 20-20. Heinrich gambled on a pass from his own goal line following the kickoff. Dillon picked it off on the 15 and romped to the 5. Jim Shanley, who had a fine night, crashed through for four yards, and Ferguson then crashed over. Kinard's interception, which led to the clincher, was a beauty. He snared the toss while running with his back to the play like Willie Mays. So great was his momentum that he careened another 10 yards in the wrong direction before tumbling to the ground. Seven plays were all Starr needed, mainly as the result of a pass to McGee for 21 yards and Shanley's 25 yard scamper with Shanley pulling a "nautilus" maneuver from the one. Make no mistake, however, Starr wasn't the only fine quarterback on the field. Babe Parilli had his moments and third-ranked Joe Francis completed the night's scoring with a 29-yard payoff pitch to Dick Deschaine. And even more encouraging to Coach McLean was the showing of his three rookies who accounted for most of the ground gains. Shanley carried the ball seven times for a total pickup of 46 yards, while Jim Taylor gained 33 yards in seven chances.

TRAPPED BEHIND LINE

The best average of all was credited to Francis, whose 28 yards in two tries was all the more noteworthy because they came after he had been trapped behind the line of scrimmage. McLean won't single out any of his quarterbacks as No. 1. "They were all great," he said, "and they're all going to see plenty of action all season. Who will be the starter, I can't say right now because it may change from game to game." Of Shanley he said "great, just great out there." If Shanley and Taylor can add a threat on the ground to go with the fine passing of Starr and Parilli, Green Bay will aim at no lower than the top. It was a lack of power on the ground that hampered the Packers last season. This victory was achieved without the service of Paul Hornung, who is recovering as well as can be expected from a hip injury. McLean doesn't expect him to be available for two weeks. A crowd of 27,013, including Vice President Richard Nixon, turned out in perfect weather for this third annual game in memory of Harry Agganis, former Boston University star who was a Red Sox first baseman at the time of his death.

RINGO IN HOSPITAL

The first half touchdowns for Green Bay were scored by Billy Howton, who grabbed a 28-yard toss from Starr, and McGee, who snared a Parilli aerial and sprinted the final 20 yards for a touchdown play that covered 56 yards. New York got its points on the aforementioned 50-yard pass from Chuck Conerly to Gifford and a five-yard plunge by Alex Webster, plus two field goals by Pat Summerall. Another Green Bay rookie, Dick Christy, showed to advantage in his first real trial. He picked up 22 yards in nine carries. Roosevelt Grier, apparently weighing even more than his customary 280 pounds, flew to Boston from Fort Dix, where he is awaiting his discharge from the Army. Grier saw little action until late in the game, although he was inserted for three plays when the Packers had the ball on the one-yard line. His presence didn't prevent the touchdowns, but he will certainly be a welcome addition to the Giants roster...The Packers flew out of Boston Sunday and last night set up headquarters at the Oaks Motel in Greensboro, N.C., to prepare for a non-league game against the Washington Redskins in Winston-Salem Saturday night. McLean reported that the Packers came out of the New York game with no serious injuries, although center Jim Ringo spent Sunday night in a hospital in Greensboro. He injured his back.

Six Days Left in Packer Ticket Sale

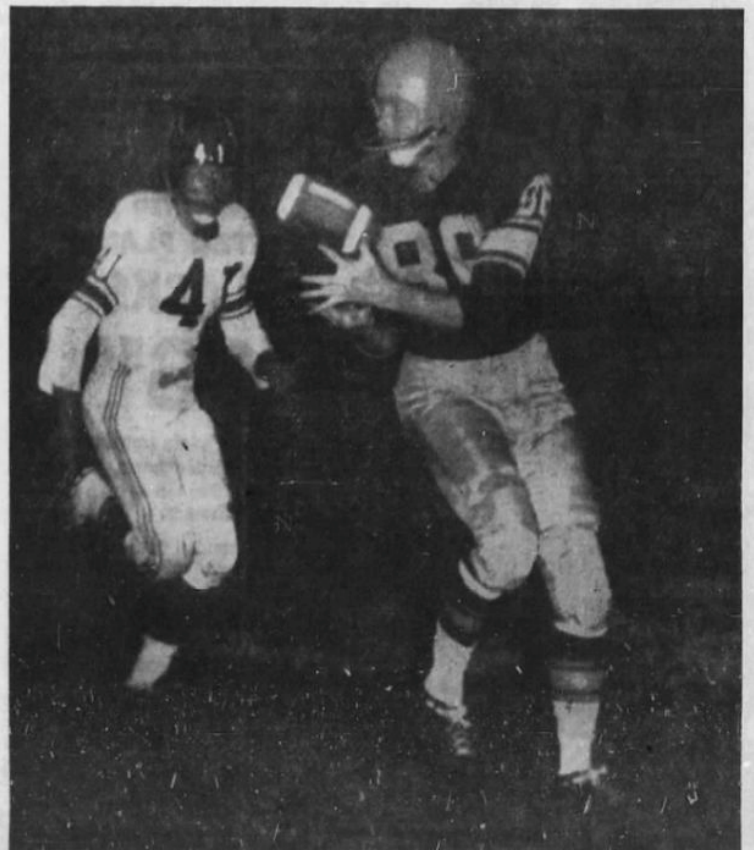

Only six days remain to buy a Packer season ticket, Packer Ticket Director Earl Falck announced today. Falck, who pointed out purchase of a season ticket is the only way to guarantee a seat at the 1958 National Football League opener against the Chicago Bears here Sept. 28, said Saturday.

SHANLEY TOO BIG FOR HIS BRITCHES?

SEPT 7 (Milwaukee Sentinel) - One look at Jim Shanley and you might say this Packer rookie has illusions of grandeur far too big for his britches. Shanley is a runt as far as pro football players go. He "tip-toes" 5-9 and weighs 170 pounds dripping wet. Why, they didn't even have football pants small enough to fit him when he checked into the Packers' summer camp at St. Norbert College. What's more, a check at Green Bay West High School failed to find a size 28-short. So Assistant Trainer Dad Braisher dug up a baggy size 30-short and Shanley set out on the only career he really wants. But, you might ask, what kind of a chance done such a rookie have against comparative giants in the NFL? "I've been playing against big guys all my life," answers Shanley. Some grizzled veterans on the squad have to admit, "he's got guts and he's tough." And even the coaching staff gets on the bandwagon: "He shows a lot of promise...a little green...but he's got some nice movements." Here is a courageous kid who married his childhood sweetheart July 6 and immediately took off for Green Bay to battle a camp full of he-men for a pro football livelihood. The former Oregon griddler walked into Scooter McLean's office as a free agent. Since then he has caught the fancy of Green Bay fans with his deception and fancy footwork. "I've got to fake," Shanley said with a shy grin. "These guys come up faster and intend to hit you harder. I wouldn't have a chance to run over 'em." Shanley has survived two major cuts because, by George, he's been downright impressive. Against the Eagles Labor Day he grabbed two of Babe Parilli's passes and danced his way around the big boys for 18 and 20 yards in his short appearance. Oh, how he was smacked! But he always bounced back for more. And here was a guy playing with a broken nose to boot! One thing, besides making the Packers, bothers Shanley. He hasn't seen his wife, Mary Jo, since leaving Coos Bay, Ore., six weeks ago, and $50 a week (that's what he makes with the Packers until he makes the grade) isn't exactly much to write home about. But talking about the Oregon homecoming queen whom he married reminded him of another depressing moment. It seems Oregon State was leading Oregon, 10-7, with little time remaining. Shanley plunged from the two for a touchdown. But as he fell into the end zone, a linebacker grabbed Shanley's arm, causing him to fumble. State recovered and Shanley's team lost. He then vowed to hang onto the ball at all costs. Although there may always be some degree of sentiment in pro football, Shanley will have to show a lot to make good. In the end a man either has it or he hasn't. But "Little Jim" is giving it everything he has. And a satisfied critic is McLean, whose "scooting" earned him a job with the Monsters of the Midway. "You can't beat that desire," says McLean, when he speaks of Shanley.

PACKER TICKET SALE 26,028!

SEPT 9 (Green Bay Press-Gazette) - Here's a spot of good news to go with the Packers' 41-20 victory over the Giants!

The Packers' season ticket sale has soared to an unprecedented 26,028! That was the word today from Earl Falck, director of Packer ticket sales, who quickly added: "We're not stopping there. The season ticket sale won't be over until Saturday. That means we can go well above the latest figure." It also means Mr. and Mrs. Joe Phan, that today, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday are the last days you can be assured of a ticket to the Chicago Bear opener Sept. 28. A season ticket, of course, means a grouping of tickets to games against the Bears, the World Champion Detroit Lions Oct. 5, the "fighting" Philadelphia Eagles Oct. 26, and the talent-laden Los Angeles Rams Nov. 16. Today's 26,028 total - about half the population of our town - establishes a new season ticket record for four games in the new City Stadium. And it's considerably higher than the mark of 23,000 set last year for the three games. The three sellouts (32,000 plus) a year ago prompted the Packers to add a fourth game this season. And now the prospects look rosy for four packed houses!...Added impetus to the ticket sale is the success of the Packers on the field - in other words two straight victories, a 20-17 decision over the Eagles and the slaughtering of the Giants with a 28-point second half. The game gave some indication that the Packers might come up with more scoring this year. Blanked in the impossible deluge deal with the Steelers, the Bays scored 61 in their next two. They counted only 100 in six non-leaguers last year - an average of 16, against the 20-plus in three this year. At any rate, the Pack's 41 was the highest total scored by Green Bay in a non-leaguer since the Pack beat Washington 43-0 in 1948...The manner in which the Packers took charge in Boston shows up in the number of offensive plays. The Bays ran off 70, the Giants only 44. Green Bay threw 27 passes, New York 24. The Packers rushed the ball 43 times, the Giants only 20. Green Bay gained a total of 451 yards, the Giants 188. Did you notice that the Packers' top three rushers were rookies? Jim Shanley led with 46 yards in 7 attempts. Jim Taylor was second with 33 in 7 and Joe Francis added 28 in 2. Howie Ferguson followed with 23 in 7. The task will be a bit tougher in Winston-Salem, N.C., Saturday night when the Bays take on the always-tough Washington Redskins. The Redskins split four games, one of the victories being a 35-31 decision over the common-foe Eagles. Packer Coach Scooter McLean placed rookie end Don Bishop on waivers today, reducing the official roster to 46 players. He said that veteran Forest Gregg was due to report at Greensboro from Camp Carson, Colo., today.

STEELERS DROP JOE JOHNSON

SEPT 9 (Pittsburgh) - The Pittsburgh Steelers asked waivers Monday on Joe Johnson, former Green Bay Packers back who was signed as a free agent two weeks ago. Johnson failed to break into the lineup.

Pack Offensive Line Key in Giant Win, Film Reveals

SEPT 10 (Green Bay Press-Gazette) - "We found a lot of little mistakes, but we are real happy with the offensive line." That's how Packer Coach Scooter McLean and aides Jack Morton, Breezy Reid, Ray Richards and Nick Skorich summed up pictures of the Packer-Giant game in Boston Saturday. The coaches ran the films through three times and McLean was delighted with Skorich's offensive line, explaining: "The pass protection was fine and the quarterbacks had enough time to throw and complete their passes. The entire offensive line did a good job." The line's work shows up in the Packers' yardage total for the game - 451 yards, including 180-odd stripes on the ground in the 41-20 victory. And Babe Parilli, Bart Starr and Joe Francis completed 18 out of 27 passes. "We thought the defense did a good job as a group - especially in the second half," Scooter said. Defensive backs intercepted three passes to set up three touchdowns in the third quarter and one play in the fourth. On the cautious side, Scooter asked: "Don't let the people get the idea that it's that good. We made quite a few little mistakes and we've got to correct them." The Packers expect to get a stiffer test from the Washington Redskins in Winston-Salem Saturday night. "They're sound all the way through. That's what we hear from our scouts," Scooter said. Reid and Morton scouted the Redskins in their 35-31 victory over the Eagles last Saturday. The Redskins are playing former Packer defensive back Doyle Nix at safety instead of cornerback where he operated as a Bay rookie in 1955. Nix, fresh from two years of service, was traded to Washington with John Petitbon for J.D. Kimmel and Steve Meilinger. Petitbon never reported. Injuries may keep four Packers out of Saturday's game - Paul Hornung, Gary Knafelc, Ken Gray and Dan Currie. Bob Burris and Hank Bullough, who missed the Giant game with injuries, will be ready. Center Jim Ringo probably will be released from the hospital here today. He suffered a back injury at Boston. The Packers asked waivers on Don Bishop Tuesday. He had been waived by the Pittsburgh Steelers earlier.

J.J. THINKS PACKERS WILL HAVE TERRIFIC TEAM

SEPT 10 (Green Bay Press-Gazette) - Former Packer veteran Joe Johnson is back in Green Bay after a brief sojourn in Pittsburgh. And "I think the Packers will have a terrific team," the likeable hard-worker from Boston College said Tuesday. Johnson, who has his family here, plans to remain in condition and thus be ready just in case. He could be sort of an insurance policy on Ron Kramer's injured leg. Joe played slot back behind Kramer last year and thus could work with Steve Meilinger if anything (horrors) happened to Kramer. Johnson said he didn't like going to the Steelers. "I came up with the Packers and I'd just not rather play with anybody else. If I can't play anymore, the last team I want to play with is the Packers," Joe said. And if you know J.J., that's exactly what he means! The New Englander feels the Packers are on their way back and "Scooter certainly will have a hard job cutting the squad. I told him when I left I'd hate to be in your shoes when it comes to cutting." Johnson brought good news to West Siders about Soup Campbell, the former West High and Marquette star who is now trying to win a berth with the Steelers. "Campbell got a good test against the Colts and he did well - especially on his pass blocking against Donovan and Lipscomb. He has a good chance of staying," Joe thought, adding: "It looks like Horton might make it, too." That would be Harry Horton, the rookie defensive end who was in the last group to be waived out by the Packers...What's this? "There's a girl sportswriter covering us for the Winston-Salem paper," Scooter said over the telephone from North Carolina yesterday, "and she knows her football, too." Mary Graber, a football writer for the Winston-Salem Journal-Sentinel, covers the Packers at their practices at the nearby Greensboro baseball park. BUCK HAD HIS GREATEST DAY AGAINST MILWAUKEE BADGERS - IN '22

SEPT 10 (Green Bay Press-Gazette) - When Cub Buck was nearing the end of his career, a Chicago Bear halfback who had starred at Illinois (not Red Grange - he was still a college boy) pulled a caper generally considered sufficient cause to cancel his life insurance in those days. He tried to run right over Buck in an open field. Cub flattened him so forcibly he was through for the day. Buck still remembers the incident with supreme satisfaction for two reasons. First, the misguided lout was a Bear, and Cub still bristles when he thinks of the Bears. Second, it was a highly successful financial maneuver. Next day Buck, who comanaged an automobile agency in Neenah in his spare time, needed a bank loan to make a down payment on a shipment of new cars. When he showed up at the bank, the president remarked that anyone who could hit that hard could have anything he wanted. Cub got the dough. Buck doesn't claim that was his best afternoon as a Packer. It all happened so long ago - nearly 35 years - he can't single out any particular contest as his top performance in a five-year career studded with outstanding play. That leaves it up to George Calhoun, and Cal has no doubt about Cal's big day. In Cal's opinion, Buck's outstanding performance was against the Milwaukee Badgers here on Nov. 26, 1922, when his phenomenal punting paced the Packers to a 13-0 victory. In doing it, he made a bum out of Jimmy Conzelman. Jimmy, one of the great early pros, came close to being the premier punter of professional football in the years before Vern Lewellen. Cal's game account in the Press-Gazette isn't as detailed as he later wrote them; consequently, it isn't possible now to reconstruct exactly how Buck did it - the number and length of his kicks, etc. - but punting was more frequent then than now. About all there is to go on is the following paragraph: "The Bay bootsmith placed his boots beautifully and generally the Milwaukee safety was chasing the pigskin out of bounds far down the field. Milwaukee didn't hardly run a punt back." Conzelman, who played a rather frustrated safety that afternoon, later said the ball sailed so high and far it was like trying to follow a pea. Although it was only the second meeting in a series that became increasingly bitter as long as Milwaukee remained in the NFL, the pattern had already been set. It quickly developed into what Cal called a "mean" game. The first contest in Milwaukee had ended in a scoreless tie, the Packers hadn't been doing too well, and the boys were sore at the world. Milwaukee was a convenient target and natural target. Furthermore, both clubs had acquired a few players from the recently defunct Rock Island Independents who were perfectly willing to work each other over. Conzelman had joined the Badgers while Green Bay had picked up Dewey Lyle and Bing Lauer the week before the game. The Packers almost scored in the first period. Curly Lambeau connected with Charley Mathys on a 20 yard pass inside the Badger 20, but the visitors clamped down. Lambeau tried a field goal but Paul Robeson, better known then as an All America end from Rutgers than as one of the world's great singers, smashed through to block it. In the second quarter Lambeau squeezed over the goal line after hitting Tommy Mills for a 40 yard gain to the Milwaukee ten and kicked the goal. The rest of the half Buck's booming lofts bottled up the Badgers deep in their own territory. The Packers got close enough to try two more field goals but both were smothered. It was the same story through the third quarter. The Badgers would churn slowly downfield, lose the ball, and Cub would give it a ride. Then they would start all over again. The tactics paid off in the final period after Buck angled a long boot out of bounds on the Milwaukee 10-yard stripe. Unable to move, the tiring Badgers had to kick, but one of them was shoved into the path of Conzelman's punt to block it. Although

Last year, as part of the ceremonies leading up to the dedication of new City Stadium, Green Bay Packer fans selected an up-to-date All Time Packer team. Beginning today is a series of 11 articles, in which each member of that All Time lineup has his say on what he considers his greatest or most memorable game as a Packer.

Just to jog the memory, here is the roster of the All Time Team: Ends — Don Hutson and Lavvie Dilweg; Tackles — Cub Buck and Cal Hubbard; Guards — Mike Michalske and Buckets Goldenberg; Center — Charley Brock; Quarterback — Arnie Heber; Halfbacks — Johnny Blood and Tony Canadeo; Fullback — Clarke Hinkle.

Milwaukee recovered, it had been fourth down, and the Packers took over inside the ten. On his second smash at the stubborn Badger wall Lambeau scored again. This time his conversion was blocked. In addition to playing with the Packers, Buck was Boy Scout executive in Appleton, a partner in a Neenah automobile agency, and coach at both Lawrence College and of the Kaukauna city team. He would practice in Green Bay in the morning, race to Appleton to help coach the Vikings in the afternoon, then head for Kaukauna to hold workouts before dark. En route he checked on the Scouts and his car business...FIRST COACH AT MIAMI: Leaving the Packers after the 1925 season, Buck became the first football coach at the newly formed University of Miami, Fla. Three years later he returned to his Neenah agency, later went on the road for Buick, and eventually became assistant manager of the Chicago zone. In 1944 he purchased the Buick agency in Rock Island, Ill., which he still operates. By his own admission, Cub is still enthusiastically chasing his tail. During football season he sees at least three games a week and usually makes the All Star show, the pro playoffs and a couple of bowl games. In the spring he takes a swing to the western and southern major league training camps, sees a lot of baseball and turns up regularly at big college track meets. He also manages to get involved in "any other sports available, such as skiing, polo, tennis, etc." He doesn't say whether he watches or plays, but Cub Buck on a polo pony would be something to see. Tomorrow - Arnie Herber.

PACKERS' MEILINGER, KIMMEL FACE 'SKIN EX-MATES SATURDAY

SEPT 11 (Greensboro, NC - Green Bay Press-Gazette) - Green Bay's Steve Meilinger and J.D. Kimmel, a pair of former Washington Redskins, will be in the starting lineup when the Packers battle the Redskins in nearby Winston-Salem, N.C., Saturday night. Meilinger and Kimmel were obtained by the Packers last spring in trade for two defensive backs, Doyle Nix and John Petitbon. Melinger, figured as a slot back replacement behind Ron Kramer, will open at that position. Kimmel will fire away at defensive right tackle - a position at which he starred in the 41-20 victory over the Giants last Saturday. Nix will open against the Packers at a safety position. He played at cornerback with the Pack two years ago. Petitbon never reported, deciding to stay in the insurance business in New Orleans. Playing against former teammates will be a new experience for all three active trades since they were making their first moves. It almost turned out to be a one-for-one trade since Kimmel needed a lot of persuading to delay starting a petroleum engineering scholarship at Rice Institute. With the exception of a few plays at Boston when Kramer entered the scene, Meilinger has done just about all of the Packers' slot-backing. The 230-pounder has been catching the ball well. McLean guided the Packers through a brief bit of contact work on pass protection in yesterday's afternoon drill. "We'll get rough on pass protection once a week," Scooter said. Apparently, the pass protection work under the watchful eye of offensive line coach Nick Skorich has paid off. McLean termed the Packers' offensive line as the outstanding feature of the victory over the Giants. McLean said the injured players "are coming along well. We may be able to use three of them," referring to Hank Bullough, Dan Currie, and Paul Hornung. They missed the Giant game along with Gary Knafelc, Ken Gray and Bob Burris. Jim Ringo, veteran center, returned to practice yesterday after spending two days in the hospital here. He was treated for a back injury. Forest Gregg was due to report to the Packers as a civilian today. He has been at Camp Carson, Colo., being separated from military service. Gregg had been with the Packers during the training period back home.

SEPT 11 (Green Bay Press-Gazette) - Gridiron buffs who remember Arnie Herber usually think of him only for his forward passing skill. This isn't fair to Arnie. While Herbe was the first of a long line of great pro hurling specialists that included little Davey O'Brien, Sammy Baugh, Cecil Isbell, Otto Graham and Tobin Rote, he was also a splendid all around football player. He could run, kick, block and tackle as well as throw the ball. So it is only natural that Arnie should select as his big Packer day a game in which he did all these things. His choice is the 26-0 victory over Stapleton in the old City Stadium on Oct. 30, 1932. Any of the 8,000 or more fans present that afternoon would probably agree with him. Possibly a major reason why Herber looks back so fondly on that one is because it was the first time he ever showed to full advantage. Although he had been a member of the club since 1930, he had been in the shadow of the late Red Dunn and had had little chance to show what he could really do. How well he came through was best expressed by Sports Editor Art Bystrom next day. Art was ecstatic about the individual performances of virtually the whole Packer team, but when he came to Arnie he wrote: "Topping them all was Arnold Herber, fleet halfback who once ran wild on the gridiron for West High School. Herber punted, blocked, passed and roamed all over the field to turn in the greatest individual performance of brilliant football seen here in many years." Coming from Bystrom and at the time it did, that was high praise. The Packers, with three straight titles under their belts, appeared well on the way to a fourth when Stapleton came to two to ring down the curtain on the local scene for 1932. They were undefeated with only a tie with the Bears to mar the record - a tie, incidentally, that was to prove vital in stripping them of the championship later. Nobody dreamed of such a thing then, however, and the Packers closed at home as though they would go on forever. Aside from Herber's heroics and their overall team excellence, it wasn't much of a contest. The Bays outclassed the Stapes, gaining momentum as the game progressed. They reached a peak in the third period, then turned the wrecking job to the reserves. By that time, Herber had established himself as a rising pro star. Green Bay got to the Stapleton three yard line in the first quarter after Arnie passed to Tom Nash for a first down on the 20, but stalled when another fell incomplete in the end zone. They broke the ice in the second as a poor Stapleton punt from behind the goal line gave them possession on the visitors' 37. A pass interference penalty moved the Packers to the 30, and Herber fired down the middle to Roger Grove on the five. Grove leaped up, plucked the ball out of the hands of Chester Ledbetter and swept over the goal line. Clarke Hinkle missed the try for point. Later in the half, Hinkle crashed over following Dick Stahlman's recovery of a fumble on the Stapleton six, but the Packers were penalized and Herber again failed to connect on a toss into the end zone. Those two throws, which meant loss of the ball in those days, were the only ones Arnie missed all day. Stapleton had moved to the Packer 22 in the third period when Herber blew the game wide open on a play he knew was coming. Just before, he had come up to make a tackle and was still behind the huddling Stapes when he heard an end tell Ken Strong he thought he could get behind Arnie for a pass. Strong threw it and Arnie was ready. He snared it near the sideline on the Packer 15 and sped 85 yards to a touchdown behind hastily formed but beautiful interference. Just before he crossed the goal line Stahlman cleared the last obstacle from his path and provided Herber with a chuckle he still relishes by flattening Ledbetter. The latter, a half pint beside Dick's 240-pound bulk, bounced up and threw a punch at Stahlman. Referee George Laurie didn't see it but he spotted Stahlman's counter and thumbed him out while Ledbetter got away with it. The call infuriated the Packers at the time, but they needled big Dick about it the rest of the season. On the first play after the kickoff Strong tried another toss into Herber's garden with almost the same result. Arnie intercepted and dodged 45 yards before the Stapes caught him on their 35. He then faded back, coolly side-stepping onrushing tacklers until he spotted Grove in the clear on the Stapleton 20, and laid another TD strike in Rogers' mitts. With a 20-0 lead, Curly Lambeau pulled the regular backfield, and Herber sat out the rest of the game. While he was out there, though, Arnie had himself a time. In addition to carrying the ball for 15 yards in six tries, he completed six of eight passes for 111 yards and two touchdowns, and returned two interceptions a total of 130 yards, once for a score. He also played an alert defensive game, blocked well and hard as he always did, and averaged 35 yards in two punts. After 10 years with the Packers, during which he played on four world and one division championship teams, Arnie called it quits in 1939. He was out of football for four years, then came back in 1944 to help the Giants win the Eastern Division crown, although he couldn't get them past his old club in the playoff. He retired for keeps after 1945, came back to Green Bay, and is now a salesman for the Pepsi Cola Co. in De Pere. Tomorrow - Charlie Brock!

Scooter To Try All Three QB's vs. 'Skins

SCOOTER TO TRY ALL THREE QB'S VS. 'SKINS

SEPT 12 (Greensboro, NC - Green Bay Press-Gazette) - Packer Coach Scooter McLean plans to use all three of his quarterbacks against the Washington Redskins in Winston-Salem, N.C., Saturday night. He followed the same procedure in the 41-20 victory over the New York Giants in Boston last Saturday and all three came up with outstanding performances, including rookie Joe Francis who completed two out of three for 42 yards and one touchdown. That was Joe's first try against a major league foe, though he starred at QB in the earlier intra-squad game. In three games thus far, Babe Parilli has an edge on Bart Starr. Babe attempted 25 and completed 18 for 282 yards and a completion percentage of .720. Starr is batting .500 on 15 completions in 30 attempts. Parilli has three for six vs. Pittsburgh, seven for nine against the Eagles and eight for 10 against the Giants. Starr, in the same three games and in the same order, had 1-6, 6-10 and 8-14. While the QBs are sporting some sporty figures, the Packers actually have two perfect pitchers stashed away - Paul Hornung and Howie Ferguson, who each tried one pass and completed it. Hornung hurled a 12-yarder to, of all people, Ferguson in the 3-0 loss to Pittsburgh in the mush and rain and Ferguson wheeled a 26-yard toss to Al Carmichael to set up the winning touchdown in the 20-17 victory over the Eagles. So, including the two 1,000 hurlers, the Packers have attempted 60 passes and completed 37 for 556 yards. That boils down to a little over 9 yards gained per attempt! On the receiving end, Max McGee and Billy Howton are setting the pace with 10 and seven receptions, respectively. McGee stretched his to 193 yards, including a 56-yard touchdowner, and Howton's covered 90 stripes. Ferguson leads the rushers with 91 yards in 28 trips - a better than three-yard average, Hornung, out of the Giant game with injuries, gained 58 in 21 trips. Jim Shanley has the best average - over 5, on 53 yards in 10 tries. Jim Taylor gained 37 yards in eight trips and Dick Christy 22 in nine. As a team, the Packers rolled up 918 yards rushing and passing - an average of 306, including 362 rushing and 556 passing. The enemy gained 623 yards on 270 rushing and 353 passing. The Packers' defense is holding the foes' passing below .500 with 28 completions in 65 attempts. What's more, the Bays intercepted a fat total of eight passes. The Bays out-first downed their three opponents, 43 to 24.

SPECTACULARLY THIEVERY VS. GIANTS IN '45 BROCK'S TOP MEMORY

SEPT 12 (Green Bay) - If Charley Brock had gone in for purse snatching instead of pro football he might rank today among the important figures of crime. Charley had a genius for filching leather articles, notably footballs, that belonged to somebody else. Around the NFL, they had a word for his thieveries - they called them "Brock Fumbles". At his peak, the Packers' All-Time center was the best ball stealer in the business. Although the NFL never kept score on him, he probably had no equal when it came to separating the pigskin from an unwary ball carrier. So it figures that Brock's choice as his best game is one in which his peculiar talent played an important role. His selection is the 23-14 victory over the New York Giants at New York, Nov. 25, 1945. Charley perpetrated his specialty on Ward Cuff in full view of 52,681 spectators to

Scooter McLean Needs Exhibition To Cull Forces

Green Bay Packer head coach Scooter McLean is confronted by a perplexing problem as he wades into the Washington Redskins Saturday night at Winston-Salem, N. C.

The big question in the Packer camp these days is who to cut and who to keep. A great deal probably will depend upon the activities of individual Packers tomorrow night in the Redskin exhibition.

To keep abreast of every game development and to know "the big plays" as they happen, listen to the play-by-play report of the Green Bay Packer-Washington Redskin game over WJPG starting at 8:00 p. m.

turn the tide in the third period and intercepted two passes, one of which he carried for a score. But there were only highlights of a generally terrific day for the Green Bay captain. Charley also knocked down a few aerials, laid ball carriers low all over the field with vicious tackles and was a bulwark on offense. Dave Yuenger, covering for the Press-Gazette, said flatly that it was Brock's greatest day. The New York Times was equally impressed. The defending champion Packers had already lost their chance to repeat when they sandbagged the Giants, but they looked more like champions doing it than they had all season. Their 16-pount third quarter, triggered by Brock's successful larceny, was the best of year, according to Yuenger. Green Bay almost lit the fuse at the outset when Ted Fritsch ran the opening kickoff 81 yards to the Giants end zone, only to be ruled out of bounds on the New York eight. The Giants shoved the Packers back and Fritsch missed a 40-yard placement attempt. The Giants then moved to the Packer 35, but Brock stepped in front of one of Junior Hovious' tosses and lumbered 41 yards to the New York 31 before he was ridden down. Howie Livingston returned the compliment by snatching a pass out of Don Hutson's hands on the Giant two and returning it to the 39. From there the New Yorkers rose the air lanes to a touchdown, which came on a beautiful catch by Frank Liebel of a 26-yard bullet from Hovious. The Packers took the kickoff and drove 59 yards. The tying tally came in the second quarter when Fritsch bulled over from the two and Hutson converted. The Giants had just taken over on their own 20 in the third period after another unsuccessful field goal try by Fritsch when Brock came up with his crucial snatch. Ward Cuff broke away to the Giant 37, but Brock wrenched the ball out of his hands in the open and came back to the New York seven. Three plays later Fritsch crashed over from the four yard line. Hutson's point after kick was blocked but Don made up for that a short time later with an 18 yard placement following Roy McKay's interception to make the score 16-7. Near the end of the quarter Brock's larcenous compulsion broke loose again as he grabbed another Hovious aerial and raced 24 yards untouched to the end zone to push the count to 23-7. George Franck sped 39 yards with the kickoff, and the Giants drove to their final tally early in the last period. As Bill Paschal catapulted over from three yards out, Brock tried to take the ball away from him, too, but didn't make it. In addition to Brock and Hutson, another All Time Packer saw action in that game, although on the other side of the fence.

and the Giants drove to their final tally early in the last period. As Bill Paschal catapulted over from three yards out, Brock tried to take the ball away from him, too, but didn't make it. In addition to Brock and Hutson, another All Time Packer saw action in that game, although on the other side of the fence. Arnie Herber, in the deep twilight of his long career, went in for the Giants in the closing minutes in an attempt to turn the tide, as he almost did in the 1944 championship playoff, but it was a vain effort. According to Brock, Curly Lambeau was responsible for his ball-stealing habits. In Charley's rookie year, the championship year of 1939, the Packers were playing the Cardinals and needed a victory to stay in contention. The Cards were ahead and moving when Curly called Brock off the bench and sent him in to get the ball "if he had to steal it." In the first play the Cardinal fullback tried a slant off left tackle. "He was running quite high," Brock says, "and all I could see was the football in his arms. I stole it and ran for a touchdown. When the whistle blew the officials were surprised because I was standing in the end zone. Some of them thought the ball was still at the line of scrimmage. I believe that touchdown can be credited to Lambeau for telling me to steal the ball, just so we got possession. This was my first attempt at stealing the ball, and I used it to advantage for the rest of my pro career." Charley wound up his playing days with the Packers in 1946. He was an assistant coach at the University of Omaha in 1947, then returned to Green Bay where he spent two years as an assistant coach with the Packers. He left the club in 1950 to become associated with Victor McCormick and the J.R. Minahan Estate. He is now manager of the Minahan-McCormick Building and Green Bay Poster Advertising.

Bay time, and folks in the Green Bay area can hear the game via WJPG. In the starting offensive lineup for Green Bay will be Jerry Kramer at left guard and Dick Christy at left halfback. Coach Scooter McLean wants to take a long look at the highly-touted prospects and one of them, Christy, will be playing in his own backyard. He played college ball at North Carolina State. Kramer stands a chance of beating out a veteran offensive guard and he'll get his toughest test tonight. All of the other rookies will be given a good workout tonight since McLean must reduce the squad by four players by 5 o'clock Monday - deadline for the next official league cut to 38. Babe Parilli will start at quarterback for the Pack and both Bart Starr and Joe Francis are expected to follow. With Christy and Parilli in the opening backfield will be Steve Meilinger and Howie Ferguson. Every Packer but Gary Knafelc will be suited up tonight. Hank Bullough, among the injured players, will start at offensive right guard. Paul Hornung may be used some. Coach Joe Kuharich of the Redskins will start Rudy Bukich at quarterback. This is regarded as Green Bay's first real test since Washington is regarded as one of the powers in the Eastern Division. The Redskins have a murderous running attack - plus passing, and a rugged defense. The Packers will fly out of Greensboro Sunday morning and land at Milwaukee. They'll arrive in Green Bay on the North Western at 3:30 Sunday afternoon.
